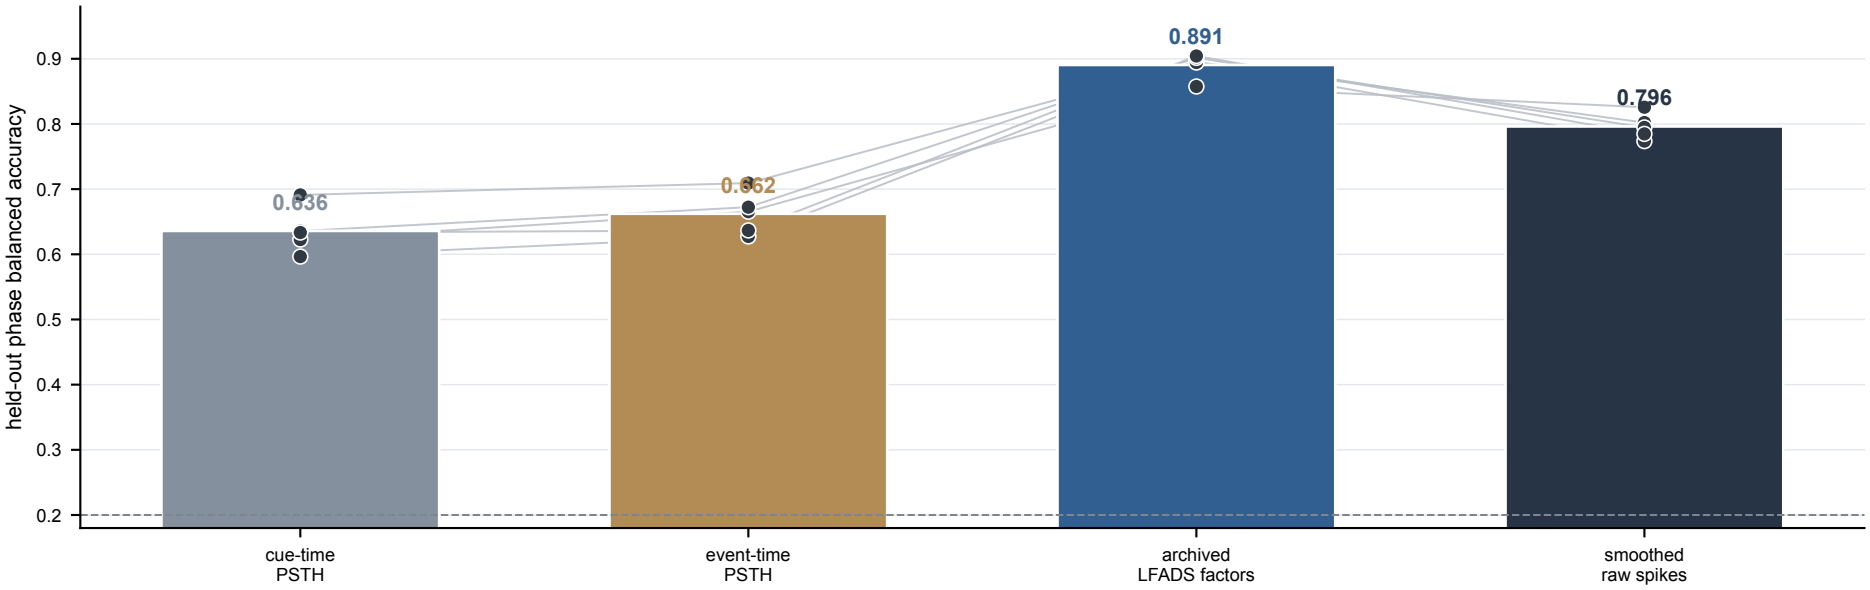
Figure 8c | Archived factors preserve behaviorally relevant CASTLE phase structure

Dots are five complete-trial folds; thin lines connect the same held-out fold across representations.

c



A separately retrained decoder predicts the five CASTLE phases from each population representation. Balanced accuracy is used because phase occupancy is unequal. Archived LFADS factors provide the highest mean decoding accuracy, followed by smoothed spikes; this is predictive representation quality, not evidence that a factor or neuron causally controls behavior.